

SOMETHING FOR THE WEEKEND?

Knocked Up

RATING: 4/5

RUNNING TIME: 126 minutes

DIRECTOR: Judd Apatow

CAST: Seth Rogan, Katherine Heigel, Paul Rudd

Everyone likes a good romcom; except miserable people who just hate them on principle. I always appreciate a good bit of humour and Knocked Up is definitely funny. Even boys will like it! The concept is fairly simple – two very different people, a high flyer and a stoner, meet in a bar, get drunk, have sex, she gets pregnant, they decide to have the baby together despite knowing nothing about each other. The subsequent scenarios provide some priceless, if predictable, laughs, and there's some colourful language and content matter, but aside from the toilet humour there's a real moral running through this, and a soft, chewy marshmallow core to that seems to say, in the end, having children really does change your life. The ending is the least schmaltzy of any romcom I've seen, and it leaves you wanting more. A great weekend movie to watch with the girls, the boys, or your other half. See it now!

Something caught your eye?

Contact us for more information

Philosophy corner

Take ancient wisdom and apply it to your workplace.

"Behind every damsel is a fire breathing dragon." Anonymous

Translation

Your boss' PA, however pretty and overworked, is not there to be saved by you, because if you attempt it, you will probably die at the hands of your hell-fire breathing boss.

LAST MONTH'S WINNER

This month's winner is Ramon Pyndiah with:

"Fatal error"

Congratulations Ramon, savour your victory!
Prize is in the post.